ICHOR

PREPARED FOR VIZIENT / NUTRITION

More choice. At the bedside.

Sugar-free Orange and Raspberry electrolyte sticks

A small choice in the patient's day

When a hospital offers flavored drinks with meals or water rounds, patients can choose the flavor they prefer. ICHOR proposes two individually wrapped options for the nutrition team to evaluate.

Orange Raspberry

Well Beyond Possible

HOSPITAL NUTRITION REVIEW

From review to meal service

A proposed evaluation for a participating hospital.

Illustrative

Product and preparation review

The nutrition team reviews ingredients, allergens, the nutrition panel and preparation directions for each flavor. The hospital determines which patients may be offered the drink and how staff would prepare and serve it.

What patients choose

In an approved unit or meal service, record how many patients were offered a drink, how many accepted, and which flavor they chose. Record preference and ask staff whether preparation fits their workflow.

Supply planning

Packaging and replenishment would follow hospital requirements. Purchasing and foodservice can review case pricing, receiving requirements and delivery lead time together. Order quantities would reflect actual consumption by flavor.

15	16	240
sticks per pouch	pouches per case	sticks per master case

NEXT CONVERSATION

Which nutrition and foodservice leads should review the two flavors?

Packaging and care scenes are illustrative. Patient use is subject to hospital review.